NEW DRY POINT ETCHINGS
BY HELLEU

Helleu

A PERPETUAL source of wonder and delight are those hair-like lines and curves with which the master of the etcher's art reproduces on a flat surface the lineless masses seen in palpable forms. Such a master is Paul Cesar Helleu, whose achievements with a diamond point on copper have given him rank with the most famous portrait painters of his time. Readers of this newspaper are already familiar with Helleu's work as an etcher of beautiful women. His portrait of Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough, was a passport when he visited this country two years ago which overwhelmed him with orders from well-known "American beauties."

painter, came with him and was his prophet. Until recently Helleu's one specialty has been portraits of types of beautiful women, whose most exquisite and fleeting charm he was able to catch with more than the fidelity of a "snap shot" camera.

On this page, he is represented as an equally happy delineator of the elusive graces of childhood. It was news of the illness of his own child that hurried him from New York back to Paris. His child poses reproduced here need no description or explanation; they seem to express the sentiment that so suddenly removed the Atlantic from between himself and his best loved model.

A $50,000,000 ROME IN OVERALLS

How George Westinghouse, Jr., Acted the Part of an Humble Workman in His Father's Machine Shops and at the Same Time Stole the Heart of Sir Thomas Brocklebank's Lovely Daughter.

"Look, mamma, isn't he perfectly stunning!"
"Within three yards of him stood a vision of loveliness, while at her elbow stood the living image of a British dowager studying him carefully through her lorgnettes."
"The Westinghouse heir added another greasy smooch to his grimy chin and went on with his work."

A $50,000,000 love romance in a machine shop? An American machine shop, the hero in overalls, with hands and face quite as grimy and greasy as those of fifty or a hundred other grimy and greasy workmen, and he looked up with an embarrassed air, over for that occasion, except two slight lurches, daughter of an English knight. "Ah, my good man, I should imagine that were drowned in the rumble of a great and noisy world."

"Yes, lady," said the Westinghouse heir, giving his face another embarrassed smooch and sniffing foolishly.

"Of course it's not your fault that you get so-so-soiled," the dowager remarked graciously, while Miss Violet covertly admired the workman's broad chest and muscular arms.

"Thank you, lady," said Miss Violet with a sigh of sympathy. "But the clothes don't make the man, you know."

"Of course not," said Miss Violet with a sigh of sympathy. "But the clothes don't make the man, you know."

"Acted Well His Part."

"Yes, lady," said the dowager, "would your master?"

"Of course, mamma," corrected Miss Violet with a smile.

"Ah, my good man, would your master allow you to know as about? All this is so interesting, really."

"I'll tell you, lady," said the dowager, "and, wiping his grimy brow on the sleeve of his jumper, he held to all the Westinghouse millions gave an excellent imitation of an ordinary workman hurrying to the office weary and holding back again with a startled grin on his smutty face."

"It's all right, lady, stop this way, please—mind the clatters."

For an hour young Mr. Westinghouse showed Miss Violet and her mamma about the shops, answering their questions and explaining everything. As he told about details of his father's great inventions, illustrated by the tasks of different workmen at their machines, he gradually lost sight of the part he was playing.

"Really, he is most intelligent—for a common workman," whispered the dowager to her daughter.

And all the while Miss Violet's bright eyes kept seeking the frank and smiling face of the young man, and she was, as she yet graceful figure, instead of keeping her gaze on the machinery—of, of course, she should have done.

"Really, in a common workman such intelligence is most unexpected," whispered the dowager to her daughter.

"I am, but I don't remember—" "You don't know me, but I saw you once in America. I'm Sir Thomas' office. You must come in. He'll be delighted to meet you."

Better said, the Westinghouse heir followed the selfish young Englishman into the Brocklebank office, where he was cordially welcomed by Sir Thomas Brocklebank.

"It never rains but it pours. In less than a minute Sir Thomas was saying: 'You must go out with me to Woolton for the week end. My wife and daughter will be delighted to meet you. They've told me all about their visit to the Westinghouse works in Pittsburgh, and their disappointment at having no opportunity to meet you there.'"

The Merry Disenchantment. Young Westinghouse could not repress a smile at the recollection of the part he played on that occasion.

"But, please," he thought, "they can't possibly recognize me." Then to Sir Thomas: "Thank you, I shall be charmed."

Woolton is the Liverpool suburb where the Sir Thomas Brocklebanks live in a great mansion in which there is a collection of paintings by old masters pretty nearly as valuable as the one in the Grosvenor gallery.

Young Mr. Westinghouse was a bit nervous. All he said he kept saying to himself: "But, please, they can't recognize me!" "Dinner is served, sir," came the announcement following a rap on his door, and he found himself he found himself in the presence of their superior. I will open hand on his jumper, while he acted as a workman. HOW MR. AND MRS. RAFFLES' COLLECT PRICELESS ART TREASURES

The $250,000 Robbery of Valuable Paintings and Other Objects of Vertu from the House of Charles Wertheimer in London Sheds New Light on the Methods of Picture Thieves, Showing Them to Be Cultured Connoisseurs and Adepts at Cutting Canvases from Their Frames.

SASSOFERRATO'S "MADONNA WITH THE ROSARY," THAT WAS CUT FROM ITS FRAME AND STOLEN FROM A ROMAN CHURCH BY A WOMAN.

A section of canvas less than a yard square may be worth $250,000. In fact, there are known to exist more than two score of such canvas squares, any one of which doubtless would command that price at auction.

Yet these valuable pieces of property, weighing only a pound or two and capable of being quickly and without injury transferred into a bag roll and concealed beneath the overcoat of a thief, are seldom kept in safe deposit vaults.

Stretched in handsome frames many of them hang upon the walls of rooms open to the public, within easy reach of the thief who needs not that a minute unobserved to run the point of a sharp knife around the lower margin of the frame, to pull up the front canvas square, to conceal it beneath his coat and saunter unconcernedly away with his treasure.

Many times has this programme been carried out successfully, though the thief has usually chosen night time for his operations, when there is less danger of interruption, if greater difficulty in gaining access to the treasure.

Thus was stolen the famous Galvanich portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire from the gallery in London of the Messrs. Agnew, who, only two or three days before had purchased it for 10,000 guineas, which is more than $50,000 in United States money.

This was about thirty years ago. In the national affair this particular brand of larceny has developed into a system having its own organized method of disposing of the stolen property.

Picture robberies have become more and more frequent, more and more bold and successful, until just now the police of Europe and America have been thrown into a spasms of activity by the biggest, boldest and most successful of them all.

This was the robbery of the private gallery and museum of Mr. Charles Wertheimer, who is not only the wealthiest collector of art objects in Great Britain, but one of the best informed art experts in the world.

The circumstances of the robbery indicate once more that class of thieves are now of culture, who are veritable walking catalogues of the world's most valued paintings and other articles of vertu, knowing each object, its location and its value as well, or better than do connoisseurs and dealers themselves.

The contents of Mr. Wertheimer's gallery and museum were valued at considerably more than $250,000. In a few minutes one night about ten days ago the thieves entered and got safely away with paintings and other articles worth at least $250,000. This means:

Portrait of Nancy Parsons, by Gustav Courbet.

Portrait of the Hon. Mrs. Charles Yorke, by Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Round miniature surrounded by bell tassels, of a lady playing a guitar.

Round miniature of a lady reclining on a sofa.

Eighteen eighteenth century gold enamel French snuff boxes, all of great value.

Mr. Charles Wertheimer's collection of works by Reynolds, Romney and Galvanich is world-renowned, and the other items of art which he possesses include jewels, china, furniture, enamel and bronzes.

Norfolk street, in which his house is situated is a small street running parallel with and near the Marble Arch end of Park lane. The backs of the houses stand in Park lane, overlooking the park, and it is believed that it was from this side that the burglars gained entrance to the house.

They must have scaled a high wall at the side of the footpath and then entered through the window of the drawing room on the first floor. This room is a very large one, and the walls are covered with precious works of old masters.

Neglecting for some reason the large canvases the thieves confined themselves to the smaller ones, of which there were four in the room. The portrait of Nancy Parsons, which was once sold by Mr. Wertheimer to Count Louis de Castelnau for $50,000, and bought by him after a lawsuit, was the first of the lot. Mrs. Charles Yorke was similarly dealt with.

Apparently the burglars were disturbed while cutting out the portrait of Mrs. Parsons and did not complete their work.

In hastening from the drawing room the thieves overlooked some caskets of jewels of immense value.

Although the house is fitted with many burglar alarms none rang until the burglars opened the hall door at 9 a. m. to leave the house. Then the loud ringing aroused the servants, and the butler and footman dashed down the stairs in slight attire to find the door wide open and no one in the street.

A search soon revealed the serious losses sustained, and in the smoking room were found three finger stails and also an old and blunt table knife, with which the pictures had been cut from their frames.

Up to the present the police have found no clue enabling them to trace the robbers. They have called descriptions of the stolen articles to every organized police department in the world, hoping in this way to detect the culprits in their efforts to dispose of their booty.

It will be remembered that the famous stolen Galvanich portrait was restored to its owner twenty-five years later by Patrick Sheehy, "the honest gambler." At the behest of Adam Worth, the thief, who in all those years had been unable to dispose of it.

Upon the death of Worth, in 1901, Sheehy recovered an old trunk in a Chicago store, wardrobe and in it found the famous painting and turned it over to its owner.

During this episode in his career, "Pat" Sheehy went into the business of collecting and selling paintings by old masters. The foundation of his collection was an old painting with the Magdalen for its subject, said to be a genuine Murillo, and presented to him by Adam Worth in return for his services in restoring to its owner the stolen Galvanich.

The so-called Murillo was said to have been stolen from a South American monastery. Sheehy made a visit to that country, but was unable to find the depicted monastery.

His latest acquisition of this sort is supposed to be a genuine Torreggiani, now being returned to Paris, which he purchased from Rinaldi, the Moorish bandit, who had received it as part of a pirate's plunder taken from some Spanish coast-ship more than a century ago.

Pat Sheehy has frankly admitted that his art enterprise would not exist except for his ability to get into touch with the "diffuse" class of art "collectors." Where these thieves were committed a few generations ago the booty has usually passed through so many hands that the original victims are hard to discover, and accordingly the treasures have become legitimately merchantable.

At least one theft of a famous painting offered evidence that both Mr. and Mrs. "Huffins" are in the business.

There was great excitement in Italy six years ago over the theft of Sassoferrato's "Madonna With the Rosary," from the altar of the church where it had been displayed for many generations. This is the church of St. Salvo, in Rome. At that time the church was open from 6 a. m. till midnight daily, being in charge most of the time of an aged and ill-situated priest.

One morning the custodian was horrified to see where the painting had been only a blank space. He knew that the painting was there at midnight when the lights were put out.

There was no clue.

But recently the old priest noticed that no longer came the American lady who, for a long time, had come daily to the church to kneel before the altar with her eyes fixed on the Sassoferrato masterpiece. She was missing as well as the precious canvas, which had been really cut out of its frame.

Then the priest remembered the efforts the American lady had made to purchase the painting.

The woman was never traced. She could not be definitely charged with the theft; nevertheless the priest could never banish from his mind the value of this rich and beautiful picture standing up to the altar.

she knew so well, after the lights were out, and with a knife cutting from the center canvas and carrying away with it great and most cherished treasure, which had been sold to Mr. Morgan for $50,000. He insisted the cops be none as spite of the fact that a hue and cry was raised a few minutes after its removal.

Last year a young Englishman, with the French name of Henri, was arrested in America for a series of picture thefts. The act which led to this arrest was the cutting of a picture from its frame in the New York gallery in Cincinnati. At almost the same time four pictures were abstracted from the collection of Mr. Adler in West Seventy-fourth street, New York, under circumstances remarkably similar to the Wertheimer robbery.

The pictures, which were cut from their frames, consisted of a landscape by Julius Dupre, another landscape from the brush of De Dint-Bonin, a Venetian scene by Tiepolo, and a landscape by the Dutch artist Decker. After the capture and conviction of a man named Arthur O'Grady he made a confession. It led to the arrest of a gang of four and the recovery of the pictures, which were found between the mattresses of a bed.

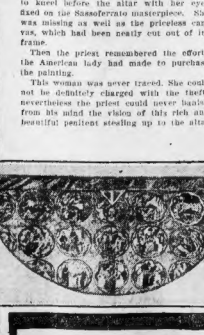

The most significant feature of the whole matter is the success of these expert art thieves in avoiding capture—which seems to prove the theory that they are of unusual intelligence and adroitness.

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, MARCH 24, 1907

"HEARST'S SAN FRANCISCO NEWSPAPER CONDEMNED BY THIEVES."

I want the readers of the Hearst newspapers throughout the country to study the document published at the head of this page. We publish this important communication not because of anything novel about it, but in order that our readers may have, if they choose, an argument for those that attack this newspaper. We publish this document also in order that those who may be inclined to doubt the fairness of criticisms in this newspaper may think the matter over and look at both sides. This set of resolutions condemning W. R. Hearst and his San Francisco newspaper were signed by eighteen supervisors of San Francisco whose names you may read.

At the top of the list stands the name of James L. Gallagher. Since he and the others signed these resolutions denouncing W. R. Hearst and his San Francisco newspaper for telling the truth, MR. GALLAGHER HAS CONFESSED TO THE GRAND JURY THAT HE HAD PERSONALLY GIVEN BRIBE MONEY TO EVERY ONE OF THE MEN IN THAT LIST, EXCEPTING L. A. REA.

All of these men, except one, are on their way to State's prison, and it is difficult to see how any cunning plan, any friend, on or off the bench, any hidden influence of the railroads and of the big interests THAT NEED THIEVES IN OFFICE, can succeed in rescuing them from their fate.

As for the Mayor, Schmitz, he too is arrested, is under bail, will have to stand his trial, guilty of the shameful dishonesty of which the HEARST SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER accused him.

This is not the first collection of thieves exposed and pointed toward the prison gates by the Hearst newspapers, and, unfortunately, there is no ground for hoping that it will be the last.

We say to our readers this:

Had you read a few weeks ago these resolutions of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, denouncing the Hearst newspaper, what would have been your impression?

Would you have thought that that might be a body of very fine men defending "Their Beloved City," or would you have realized, without the recent proof and confession of James L. Gallagher about these men, that they were guilty, shameless thieves, partners of Rief, and of the traitorous Mayor Schmitz, all engaged together in robbing the people, taking bribe money, AND ATTACKING INSOLENTLY THE NEWSPAPER THAT EXPOSED THEIR DISHONESTY?

There are many lessons for American citizens in this revelation of dishonesty in San Francisco. An exposure of such crime is important to EVERY CITY in the country. For you must remember that the very men, the very Traction Trust owners and the Telephone Trust owners and other "respectable interests" that have been caught bribing the people's agents in San Fran-

"To The San Francisco Examiner,
"Gentlemen:

"The board of supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco, regretting the hostile stand which your journal has in these distressing times assumed toward the rebuilding of our destroyed city, by indiscriminately attacking every vested interest and all intending investments of capital in this city, respectfully submit to your consideration the propriety of joining with, instead of assailing, those who are in good faith and with their energy and ability striving to restore and rebuild our beloved city.

"Irrespective of any personal feeling caused by your wanton attacks on his honor, the mayor, and on this board, we ask of you, as citizens of San Francisco and as the executive branch of our government, to cease your thoughtless and dangerous efforts to drive away from our city every interest which has expressed its intention to assist in our rebuilding, and which has manifested a practical confidence in our future. Otherwise the day will certainly not be far distant when the people, realizing the result of your course, will seek to protect the city against its further continuance.

"In all good faith, for the city's interests and without any personal rancor, these suggestions are submitted to your careful attention. Respectfully,

"Max Manlock,
"Charles Bixton,
"L. A. Rea,
"F. P. Nicholas,
"Andrew M. Wilson,

"George F. Duffey,
"J. J. Furey,
"M. M. Coffey,
"Daniel G. Coleman,
"C. J. Harrigan,
"J. J. Phillips,

"P. M. McCushin,
"E. I. Walsh,
"Sam Davis,
"James F. Kelly,
"Thomas F. Lonergan,
"W. W. Sanderson."

The above communication condemning Hearst's San Francisco newspaper, THE EXAMINER, denouncing that newspaper for criticizing the Mayor and public officials associated with him, is typical of such attacks upon Hearst newspapers by "vested interests" throughout the country.

This particular communication is interesting at this moment because of the "GENTLEMEN" WHO SIGNED THE COMMUNICATION, ALL, WITH ONE EXCEPTION, ARE NOW ON THEIR WAY TO PRISON AS COMMON THIEVES. AND THE MAYOR WHOM THEY SO TOUCHINGLY DEFEND IS ALSO INDICTED. These men, hiding behind their "Beloved City" and attacking a newspaper fighting for the city and its inhabitants, are bound for prison, where they will do some useful work. Others, condemning officially or otherwise the Hearst newspaper for telling the truth, will live to go through the same experience as fast as we can get and prove the facts about them.

Unfortunately, the hypocrisy expressed in the communication printed on this page is reflected too often on the pages of so-called "Respectable" newspapers.

These newspapers are willing, when somebody does the work and exposes the thief, casually to mention it, but THEY KNOW, THEIR EDITORS KNOW, THAT THEIR OWN CITIES ARE BEING ROBBED IN THE SAME WAY, AND THEY HAVE NOT A WORD TO SAY.

When we talk about the work that this newspaper has done in San Francisco, pointing to you the resolutions condemning the Hearst San Francisco newspaper, and then pointing out the proved guilt of the men accused, our idea is to secure your co-operation and confidence—if it be lacking—in the future efforts that this newspaper will make to convict thieves and stop thievery.

It would be easy to follow the usual course of corporation-owned newspapers. It makes no difference to a newspaper or its prosperity whether the aldermen or mayors of cities steal or are honest.

But it does make a great difference to the INHABITANTS of the city, and it OUGHT to make a difference to honest newspapers. For all the income and all the influence of a newspaper are given by the citizens, and the least that a newspaper can do is to prove gratitude and loyalty by honest statements of facts, regardless of the feelings hurt.

Readers, you know what bitter cries of anguish are heard WHEN WE DO TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT "RESPECTABLE" THIEVES. Whether we tell the truth about a collection of aldermen, or a mayor, or an attorney-general, or a Belmont candidate for President, there is always dignified, solemn protest. How fine and "Respectable" it sounds when the man with the bribe in his pocket talks about "shameful yellow journalism, irresponsible criticism, attacks upon vested interests and respectability," etc.

Could anything sound more virtuous and moral than the communication on this page aimed at a Hearst newspaper?

Could you conceive of anything more high sounding than these thieves among the San Francisco supervisors pathetically describing their efforts "to protect their beloved city," and all but one with pockets full of bribes?

HERE ARE FACTS FOR EARNEST, LAW-ABIDING AMERICAN CITIZENS TO TAKE TO HEART:

It is proved that the mayor, the city council, which is the governing board of San Francisco, and the political boss are alike corrupt, bribe-taking men.

It is proved that these men have been in the pay of the biggest and most powerful and hitherto respected men in the United States. Imagine what these men are doing in YOUR city.

The Traction Trust in San Francisco is made up of the same powerful personalities as are the traction concerns in other cities. You see this Traction Trust convicted of bribe-giving in San Francisco. This may help you to understand WHY THE TRACTION TRUST IS ABOVE THE LAW IN YOUR OWN CITY.

That a mayor, councilman and a political boss should turn out to be thieves is not very surprising in these days, when the public allow their property to be sold at auction to the highest Trust bidder.

But it is truly disgusting to know that the most influential men in America whose control tremendous fortunes, those who control PUBLIC NECESSITIES, are habitual criminals.

There is no country known as captains of industry as proved to be CAPTAINS IN CRIME. They steal trust funds from life insurance companies brazenly.

If they want the permission of a city to operate street car lines, gas works or telephone wires, they impudently enslave the people AND BUY THE PEOPLE'S REPRESENTATIVES.

They ought to be in prison, not one or two, but scores of them. The men that we read about as purveyors of great works of art, the men that pose as the distinguished citizens and financial kings of the country, ought, many of them, to be in prison beside the smaller thieves and criminals less dangerous. The man who GIVES a bribe or who hires another to give a bribe, is a criminal more dangerous than any thief or burglar, he is a criminal worse by far than the man who TAKES the bribe.

These things we ask our readers to think over. We ask them especially to consider one last statement, which is the most serious of all.

THESE BIG MEN THAT GIVE THE BIGGEST DEBACH THE BALLOT AND CORRUPT PUBLIC OFFICIALS ARE NEVER PUNISHED.

Desperate efforts will be made in San Francisco to save the men that TOOK the bribes. The Trusts that constantly need to buy them that constantly need to have public property stolen for them, will fight and use what money and what justice they can. There will be a desperate effort to keep these little criminals out of jail. We do not think it will succeed.

BUT THE REAL CRIMINALS WILL STAY OUT OF JAIL. The big men of the Trusts who furnished the money and instructed the bribe-takers will still go to Europe, and their yachts, buy their pictures and continue to rob the people of the country that has made them rich, and to bribe the people's elected officials, shamelessly, impudently and fearfully ABOVE THE REACH OF THE LAW.

An Appreciation.

"WE ARE HERE TO STAY."

And we said that in the most positive terms a recent card to the Public, in which we defined the exact policy of this Store. We gave you a concise and lucid declaration of our business principles. We desire that the facts printed there shall be remembered as in shining letters.

And now for the appreciation.

Since the publication of that Card thousands of letters have been written to us.

Many came from men and women high in professional and social circles. Many came from people treading the humbler walks of life. Without exception, all were splendidly encouraging.

Our denunciation of the malicious gossip that has been slanderously spread with intent to injure this Store was emphatically approved by those who wrote.

To all of our correspondents and to all those who are with us in heart and spirit, but who did not write us, we say fervently, THANK YOU!

This is a great Store. We have said that often before and doubtless we shall say it often again, because IT IS A GREAT TRUTH.

The Store is young, buoyant and boundlessly ambitious. Its heads are versed and versatile. With each day new local experiences are learned and profitably for it is Mr. Henry Siegel's desire that everything shall be done to be thoroughly in accord with the New England spirit of progressive shopping.

Easter is almost here, and the store welcomes that great event—indicating the dawn of Spring—with stocks splendidly selected and enormous in quantity. The organization is eager and accurate. The sales forces are intelligent and prompt. The delivery service is speedy—being unquestionably the best in Boston.

PRICES ARE RIGHTFULLY LOW, as low as can be asked for trustworthy merchandise. And lower in many instances than some of our strongest competitors can buy at wholesale.

We can ask these low prices, because this Store, being one of the four largest Stores in the Henry Siegel system of mammoth department store enterprises, merchandise is bought in tremendously large quantities, thus obtaining concessions not possible in any other store in New England.

YES, WE ARE HERE TO STAY.

R. G. KELSEY'S EXCITING TRIP HERE FROM GOTHAM

The recent record performance of R. G. Kelsey in the Madison car from New York to Boston was one of the most interesting events of the show week, a trip brought with danger and yet over a week's work. In speaking of this trip, Mr. Kelsey, who is an amateur in every sense of the word, and who motors for the pure love of the sport, said:

"I was unquestionably the hardest trip I have ever undertaken, not even excepting my long record from New York to Chicago. On that trip the roads were fresh and exciting was gone. In this latest trip, however, the forcing was tremendous, to say the least, and in places it was almost impossible to secure any traction whatsoever. The true condition of the roads was so imagined when it is known that in descending many hills I was forced to get into my second gear to make headway, and that, too, on hills over which one of the best drivers in the world could not pass."

The car's performance was praised by all who saw it, and it is expected to continue to make a fine record in the future.

MEMNON was a giant statue of a heathen deity in Egypt so constructed that when the first rays of the rising sun struck it it gave forth a musical note. For three thousand years it has been one of the wonders of the world.

How much greater this is the work of that wonderful "World Edison" the Edison Phonograph—which gives forth not a single musical note, but every note in the whole gamut and every sound that can be heard; which gives it forth not alone at daylight, but all day long and at night; which, instead of being in one isolated and hard-to-reach spot, is right on the corner table in your own living room, where the family circle can gather around it. This is the real wonder of the world—to employ a great inventive genius to produce the greatest amount of amusement for the largest number of people.

The Edison Phonograph is the vocal Memnon of the Twentieth Century. And there are a number of dealers anxious to show it to you.

A Bloodless Fight Between a Tablet and a Habit—The Tablet Wins.

At the age of 22 Clarence had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating.

At the age of 24 Clarence married and went to boarding. On top of all this he attended a dinner and wine dinners, which reduced the size of his collar from 16 to 15. With still adding faith in the strength of his stomach he gulped his meals and choked them afterwards.

At the age of 26 Clarence began to hear an inward warning—a warning from the stomach. After each meal he would feel bloated and heaving like a barrel.

He began to be a light eater—and a heavy thinker. He tried to think of a cure, for now he had to do so at his meals absolutely digested at the thought or sight of anything to eat.

He would all at once feel a gnawing, unrelenting "hollowness" feeling in his stomach, even after he was through eating, when his meal was well digested or not.

And he suffered a good many other things with his stomach that he could not explain, but that made him generally miserable, and he was not a happy man.

So he had an account, which he had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating. He had a habit of eating.

Now he has a habit of eating. He has a habit of eating. He has a habit of eating. He has a habit of eating. He has a habit of eating.

Remember, one ingredient of St. Mark's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest for you 10,000 grains of food, just as it did for Clarence.

This relieves your stomach of the work of digesting until your stomach is able to do its own work. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach.

It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach.

It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach.

It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach.

It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach. It is a relief to your stomach.

Former Postoffice Inspector William B. Snow Leaves Government Service--- Becomes Chief Investigator of Business for a Growing Financial Agency

In an article of from a quarter of a column to five columns in each of the daily newspapers of Boston in the morning and afternoon editions of last Wednesday, Mr. William B. Snow has announced that he has resigned from the postoffice inspection service and that he has accepted a position as chief investigator of business for a growing financial agency.

Mr. Snow has held a high official position with the government for the past 12 years, and the announcement that he has retired from that position was an event of great importance to the public. He has been in the service for the past 12 years, and the announcement that he has retired from that position was an event of great importance to the public.

I am an optimist as to America and the opportunities it offers to capital and labor and brains. I believe that good investment opportunities abound—that there is a future in the country. The admission of the fact that there are numerous good investment opportunities is a fact that is not generally recognized.

The national prominence of my business, being that of the largest financial agency in the United States, and the fact that the government has been in the service for the past 12 years, and the announcement that he has retired from that position was an event of great importance to the public.

Those on the outside can have no conception of the volume of work that this vast array of offerings imposes on my office. It has taxed my organization far beyond its resources, and I have been compelled to create a special department to consider individual propositions in detail, and this department I have placed in charge of former Postoffice Inspector William B. Snow.

Plans, schemes, designs, projects, prospects and propositions in various degrees of development are submitted to my office, looking to my undertaking for them. The work of a financial agency is to select the best of these and to place them in the hands of the public. TO THE PUBLIC--STATEMENT FROM FORMER POSTOFFICE INSPECTOR WILLIAM B. SNOW

I embrace this method of saying to the honest investors of the United States. In substance, what I have to say is that I have been in the service of the government for the past 12 years, and the announcement that he has retired from that position was an event of great importance to the public.

to the millions of American investors—seeing that he bases and builds his business deliberately on the campaign of financial education and publicity work. He is conscious of the fact that the honest investors of the United States are in a position to be misled by the dishonest and unscrupulous operators of the financial market.

I shall stand for the things I have always stood for. I have lowered no standards of civic duty in passing from public to private station. I shall stand as resolutely for the honest investors of the United States as I have always stood. I have lowered no standards of civic duty in passing from public to private station. I shall stand as resolutely for the honest investors of the United States as I have always stood.

SENATE TILT TO-MORROW

Avanche of Remonstrance on Heads of Legislators Trying to Bury Bills.

INCENSED at the scheme of the majority of the members of the Joint Judiciary Committee to delay the Legislature to kill the anti-injunction and other important labor bills by submission to a recess committee, many labor leaders, public officials and other prominent citizens representing thousands of citizens all over the State have issued an avanche of protest upon the heads of the committee.

Union chiefs call the recess plan a "death junket" and hint that the welfare of the whole people is being sacrificed to the caprice of a few legislators, who may be influenced by interested parties.

The "Employers' Association of Boston, fearing the result of the attempt to kill the labor bills, has sent a letter to the Legislature, asking that the bills be referred to the recess committee.

Large Gallery Applauds Crack Shots of Experts on Brooklyn Street Court.

JAY GOULD, the oldest son of George Gould, a grandson and namesake of Jay Gould, the famous financier, met and defeated Joshua Crane of Boston, Harvard's new head football coach, in four fast sets of court tennis at the Tennis and Racquet Club on Boylston street, yesterday afternoon, successfully defended his title as amateur court tennis champion of the United States.

Young Gould's father, George Gould, came over from New York yesterday to see his son defend his title. Jay Gould will now go to England to play the European champions and it is likely that he may return to this country as champion of the world.

The sets in which he defeated Crane yesterday were marked by fast and brilliant play.

Gould won three out of the four sets played. Crane took one set by a score of 6-4, but Gould defeated him decisively in each of the others.

The scores of the other sets were 6-1, 6-2 and 6-0.

A large gallery watched the play. As Gould and Crane stepped into the court the gallery was so packed that it was difficult to get in.

Crane, who is a veteran, is taller than Gould and heavier. He won the first set by a score of 6-4, but Gould defeated him decisively in each of the others.

The scores of the other sets were 6-1, 6-2 and 6-0.

War Secretary While on Trip, Lured "Pipe-Dream" Makes Republican Politicians Laugh When They Hear Story.

Washington, March 23.—American intervention in the affairs of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador, is happening. The big stick, as a modern edition of the old stick, is being used to force the rulers of these beleaguered countries.

The situation is recognized as acute. It is feared that if the operations of the United States in the affairs of these three countries are not suspended, there will be created a line of demarcation between the United States and the rest of the world.

The Secretary of War, Mr. Taft, is expected to leave for Panama, Cuba and the West Indies, to see the situation in the hands of the military.

TROLLEYS WILL GET SUBURBAN TRAFFIC; STEAM CANNOT COMPETE.

President of Boston & Maine Railroad Predicts Great Future for Electric Road.

WILL HAVE CLEAR FIELD

"No Money in It for Railroads," He Declares in Exclusive Interview.

"LINES ARE HERE TO STAY"

"Hope for Big Steam Roads Lies in the Development of Long Distance Traffic."

AN important interview given exclusively to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN yesterday, President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine railroad, declared that the railroads are no longer seeking to develop suburban passenger business, but are willing to permit the trolley systems to have practically a monopoly of the traffic within the six and seven cent fare zone.

"There is no profit in the business for the railroads," he declares. "The railroads, Mr. Tuttle says, do not intend to withdraw from the suburban business, but they will confine their attention to handling what they have now."

With regard to increased suburban passenger traffic, President Tuttle made it clear that it would be necessary for the Boston & Maine to develop a new suburban passenger business.

"Trolleys Here to Stay," he declares. "This he declares positively the road will do. He realizes that the trolley system is a revenue to a public demand and that they have come to stay."
